If the inclination is shallow it is more accurate to twist the tube so that the dip is to the right or left of the observer and in the plane of the graduated circle. The goniometer is next placed on a protractor so that the tube comes vertically over the center, and by sighting down over a straight edge placed in line with the North and South points marked on the tube the point of the compass towards which the hole dips may be determined. Figures 3 and 5 show tubes with acid, gelatine, compass, and North and South points marked, just as they are taken from the drill hole. I intend to have another goniometer made with horizontal circle to measure the course as well as vertical circle for the inclination, but have not had an opportunity to do so as yet. We have found the method described alx)ve very successful, and two tests at the same point almost always agree. When this is not the case more tests are made and so far we have always been able to ascertain which are wrong. We have made tests at a depth of 2000 , but it would probably be difficult to go much deeper without using more insulating wrapping around the thermos bottle than is possible with a bottle and case of dimensions now used. The precautions to be taken are three in number: first, that...
